Chapter 1 by Holly Jessen

Its not easy for you to think of others.
We are all caught up in our own little world
Sports, musics, speech, dance, lessons and school.
One thing that school can't teach you is
There are others in the world, who don't get everything we do.
Clean water, 3 meals a day, warm bed,
A place to call home. We take that for granted
Because we don't think of others or even see them.

We can walk past these people everyday.
In school they get bullied because of something,
They don't have or do have.
Not many people can afford everything.
It troubles me to see my family sit on the Couch,eat, and complain about it.
People always complain.
Can we take a moment and stop think about Others the child who doesn't get a gift on The holidays but instead gets a warm meal.
The mother who has to give out herself
Just so her child can go to school

People at school then make that See more of Story Wars

our country have to stand on a Corner asking for money but he server us to protect us but Most people just drive by
. On the way to work
In their own little world,
but it's ok right.
You have your six dollar
coffee from starbucks.
But it's ok because you worked for that right he didn't.
But he put his life on the line to keep you safe, but it's ok right.

Who am i to tell you that you're in the wrong
I just see these things in the everyday world
Women and children fleeing their homes To get away from abuse. It's ok because it was only once. People say that we Need to change the world
But how can we when Can't see the real Problem is Us.
